Realme Tv Invite (Image credit: Realme) Realme will unveil its first Smart TV for the Indian market on May 25. The company's first smartwatch will also debut at the same event. Realme today sent invites to an online launch event on May 25 for its first Smart TV, expected to be called the Realme TV. In addition to the Realme TV, the company is also expected to take the wraps off its first smartwatch at the same event. Source: Realme TV remain a mystery at this point, it is expected to run Android TV or a custom UI that could be based on Android TV. As per a recent leak, the Realme TV might ship with the Netflix app pre-installed and Google Assistant built-in. The Realme Watch will be a fitness-focused smartwatch with a 1.4-inch 320 x 320 LCD display. It will be capable of tracking 15 different exercises and support features such as sedentary reminders and 24-hour heart rate monitoring. It is also tipped to come with IP68 certification for water and dust resistance and a 160mAh battery. On the software side of things, the Realme Watch is said to run on a proprietary OS and not Google's Wear OS.On the same day, Realme will be holding an event in China to unveil a few more new products. As per teasers shared by the company on Weibo, it is likely to introduce a new gaming-focused smartphone with 65W SuperDart charging and 5G support. Best Cheap Android TVs in 2020 It's funny how life works. Last week, I rushed out in a hurry to purchase a new television in time for our friends to come over and watch the ball drop on New Year's Eve. The backlight to our Samsung TV had burned out, but it took swapping the various logic boards and tweaking of wires before we realized what was happening. And now, I'm writing about Xiaomi's modular television, the Mi TV 4. Not only is it equipped with its own AI-based suggestion engine and Dolby Atmos surround sound, but you can choose to swap out the base or the screen depending on the situation. Image 1 of 2What's more, Xiaomi says that about 80 percent of the Mi TV 4 is actual screen, while the other 20 percent is components. That's the way it is with traditional flat screen TVs, for the most part, but the way it is with traditional flat screen TVs, for the most part, but the way it is with traditional flat screen TVs. supposed to stand up on a TV stand, however, rather than be mounted to the wall for the sheer fact that all of its components live on the bottom. But we won't know anytime soon because the Mi TV 4 is only slated for release in China. TVs and other gadgets aren't a new product category for Xiaomi. The company has invested in 77 different incubating companies in an effort to establish itself as more than just another Chinese smartphone brand. Xiaomi launched the Mi Smarter Living 2022 event today. The company also unveiled an all-new Mi Notebook Ultra, Mi TV 5X, and the Mi Router 4A Gigabit Edition. The Mi Band 6 will soon be available to purchase in the country from August 30 for ₹3,499 (about $47). The Mi Band 6, which was announced in China in March this year, has finally made its way to India. Xiaomi launched the new Mi Smart Band 6, which is Xiaomi's best fitness tracker yet, features a 1.56-inch AMOLED display with 152 x 486 resolution and claimed peak brightness of 450 nits. It packs a 125mAh battery, which Xiaomi claims can provide up to 14 days of standby time. The fitness band also offers 30 sport modes, six auto-detection modes, continuous heart-rate monitoring, sleep tracking, blood oxygen (SpO2) monitoring, and 5 ATM water resistance. The Mi Smart Band 6 has been priced at ₹3,499 (about $47) in India. It is slated to go on sale from Amazon.in and Xiaomi's online store from August 30. It is powered by an 11th Gen Intel Core i7-11370H processor, which brings an 18% improvement in productivity performance compared to the previous generation. The laptop also features a Thunderbolt 4 port, up to 16GB of RAM, and a 512GB NVMe SSD. Xiaomi claims the notebook can deliver up to 12 hours of battery life on a single charge. The Mi Notebook Ultra will start at ₹59,999 (about $808) for the Core i5 variant featuring 8GB of RAM. The 16GB Core i5 variant is priced at ₹63,999 (about $1,037). Xiaomi has also launched the new Mi Notebook Pro with a more compact 14-inch display and similar specs as the Mi Notebook Ultra. The Mi Notebook Pro will be available for a starting price of ₹56,999 from August 30. (Image credit: Xiaomi) Xiaomi, which is the market leader when it comes to smart TVs in India, might be looking to go up the price ladder with the launch of the upcoming TV. The been using for its high-end flagship products, such as the Mi NoteBook 14 Horizon Edition. This leads us to believe that the upcoming Mi TV will come with extremely thin bezels on the top and sides, which gives an immersive viewing experience. It also says "Quintessential display tech" which could be a hint at an OLED panel, something that Xiaomi is yet to bring to India. If that turns out to be the case, it is likely to be the most expensive Mi TV ever. We expect the panel to be upwards of 50-inches diagonally with 4K resolution. Further, the company also confirmed the TV will run on Patch wall UI which is based on Android TV OS and comes with support for over 5,000 apps and games. It will come with support for Google Play Store and Google Play have any other details of the upcoming Xiaomi Horizon Edition smart TV. Since it is a smart TV by Xiaomi we can expect features like built-in Chromecast, Wi-Fi, Bluetooth, smart remote, and more which are all present on the current-gen Mi smart TVs. Did you think the era of the selfie stick had come and gone? Well think again. Chinese company Xiaomi is here to prove that our narcissism doesn't have an expiration date, and that selfie sticks are still relevant in 2017. Meet the Mi Selfie Stick Tripod, a selfie stick that fulfills all your self-photography needs. Launching just ahead of Mobile World Congress, the Mi Selfie Stick Tripod doubles as a tripod and a selfie stick, which means that you can not only take pictures of yourself that are up close and personal, but you can also set your smartphone at a distance, and take wonderfully staged shots (because not all of us have the luxury of traveling with a photographer). The detachable Bluetooth remote control will allow you to take photos from a distance, so you don't have to worry about beating the timer. After all, no one wants to look winded in a glamour shot. The Tripod comes in white and black variants, folds into a portable stick so that it can follow you on just about any adventure, and weighs in at no more than 155 grams. The Selfie Stick works alongside Apple and Android devices alike — you'll just need to have a phone running Android 4.3 or later or iOS 5.0 or later. The Tripod's mount is capable of rotating 360 degrees, and is compatible with phones of a width between 56mm and 89mm, which means it'll fit even the largest of gargantuan mobile devices. Made of an aluminum alloy, this selfie stick is dependable for outdoor use, Xiaomi claims. in China for now, and is available on Mi.com for about $13. So if you're planning a trip to Asia, this may be one travel accessory you need to pick up along the way. Editors' Recommendations
